WEATHER KEY POINTS

02/09/21 - 02/15/21

Tuesday - Wednesday

- Gusty winds are expected Tuesday through and below the mountain passes of Kern County, with gusts to around 45 mph
- Patchy dense fog expected this morning and again later tonight into Wednesday morning for the valleys
- Some light snow accumulation is possible over the Sierra today into Wednesday, but no significant impacts are expected

Thursday - Monday

- A series of storms will impact the state Thursday and through the weekend, bringing widespread light to moderate precipitation across northern and central California and possibly some spotty lighter precipitation to southern California
- Mountain snow is expected, with travel impacts likely to develop with accumulating snow and some gusty winds at times
- These storms are also expected to be much faster-moving than recent systems, bringing mostly beneficial precipitation and a low risk for any significant burn scar impacts
